$1.50 PER YEAR

TINLEY PARK SCHOOL IS DEDICATED

Tinley Park's new $32,000 school building was officially dedicated on Saturday evening. The program which began at 7:30 o'clock was very largely attended.

The program opened with a song by the pupils and was followed by the class yell.

Mrs. John F. Boeyer and Mrs. Fred Goebel sang. Miss Selma Bruggmann played a piano solo as also did Miss Joachim, daughter of the pastor of the German M. E. church. Her brother played the violin. J. W. Post sang a solo.

Cook County Supt. of Schools, E. J. Tobin gave an address in which he complimented the local building committee and the board of directors for erecting such a fine modern school at the cost of only $32,000, for he said in Chicago the cost of a new school building would be $8,000 per room and more. He also went back in the years that have passed and reviewed events of 35 years ago when he taught the Tinley Park school for two years. At that time the present village hall was in use as a school. Mr. Tobin showed what progress the community and school has made in this span of time.

Mr. Hoffman, assistant state superintendent of instruction was also present and gave a brief address as also did Dr. Wright, county health officer. Miss McClaughrey, one of the country life directors also had a part in the program.

The building committee is composed of the following:

Henry Vogt, Sr., John F. Boeyer, and J. C. Andres.

The school board is composed of Carl Goebel, Wm. Maihoff and Charles Nielsen.

Moves Building

Without Permit;

Arrest Follows

The case of the Village of Palos Park against Emil Witt which came up for a hearing at Justice Park last Saturday before Judge Crapa has been continued until Saturday Feb. 14th.

Mr. Witt was arrested by County Police upon charges preferred by the city dads who charged in their complaint that Mr. Witt moved a building on the streets of Palos without first obtaining a permit to do so from the village authorities. They also charged that he drove a 60-30 tractor over the cement highway. Another charge that of resisting an officer was waived by the village officials. Mr. Witt was arrested last Monday evening and taken before Justice Crapa of Justice Park. He gave bonds and his case was set for Saturday, Feb. 14th.

When the case came up for a hearing, Attorney J. Coulbourn, Jr., representing Mr. Witt asked for a change of venue and the case was taken to the court of Judge Price at Willow Springs where the case is to be heard Saturday, Feb. 14th at 3:30 p. m.

The village officials are represented by Attorney J. W. Savage.

Mokena School Tuition Rate Just Says Supt. Maue

The school tuition controversy between L. G. Bruder and the Board of Directors of the Mokena Public School has taken an interesting turn. State Supt. of Public Instruction Blair of Springfield has advised Mr. Bruder that the matter of fixing the tuition rate of non-resident pupils is entirely within the discretion of the school board and that they are empowered to fix a rate determined by the cost per capita of the pupils attending such school.

August Maue, Will County Supt. of Schools also advised Mr. Bruder that it costs more than $6 per month per pupil to operate and that the Board is within reason and justice in fixing the out of the district rate at $6 per month per pupil.

In response to Mr. Bruder's request as to how the school board arrived at the $6 per month tuition rate, J. C. Nielsen, clerk of the Mokena School Board has sent the following letter to Mr. Bruder:

Mokena, Ill. Feb. 5, 1925.
Mr. L. G. Bruder,
Mokena, Illinois.
Dear Sir:-

Replying to your letter of Feb. 4 beg to advise that tuition for non-resident pupils is based on cost of operation arrived by attendance. Operating costs for school year ending April 1924 was $7,993.59 for nine school months. Monthly cost was $888.17 for 125 pupils attending school, thus making the per capita cost $7.10 per pupil.

Your truly,
J. C. Nielsen,

Clerk School Board Dist. 159.
The Marti District north of Mokena is sending ten pupils to the Mokena school and are paying $60 per month tuition and feel it is a lot cheaper for them to close their school and send their pupils to Mokena than hire a teacher as it would then cost them better than $100 per month to run the school.

Mr. Bruder, states however, that he feels the tuition rate in question is excessive and that if he has to pay this rate he will send his children elsewhere.

Al Pugh of New Lenox Dies In A Chicago Hospital

Albert Pugh, aged 55 years, a resident of New Lenox for the past 22 years, died in a Chicago hospital last Saturday morning following an operation. Mr. Pugh had been in poor health for the past four months.

Mr. Pugh was born in Floyd, Virginia and came to New Lenox 22 years ago and resided here up to the time of his death.

He is survived by his widow, one son Harold and one daughter, Esther of New Lenox, four sisters, Mrs. Lala Hungat, Mrs. Emma Hungate of Floyd, Va., Mrs. Beatha Simons of Salem, Va., Mrs. Mary Stump of Cin. Ohio, five brothers, Charles and Joe of Floyd, Va., Louis of Cleveland, Ohio, James of Detroit, Mich., and Thomas of New Lenox.

The body was shipped to Floyd, Va., where funeral services were held Wednesday with interment in the family lot. Mrs. Pugh and children accompanied the remains from Chicago.

The deceased was employed at the Western Union Pole yards at Brisbane for many years. He was a genial man and will be greatly missed in this community.

G. L. HILTON OF NEW LENOX ILL IN HOSPITAL

G. L. Hilton, pioneer resident of New Lenox is quite ill at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet as the result of an infected toe. It is said that he has also worried a great deal over losing his case to have his conservator dismissed as he maintained he was able to take care of his own affairs.

Frankfort R. N. A. Gain 80 Members In Past 6 Months

The Frankfort Royal Neighbors have shown a rapid and steady growth in membership during the past six months, in which time 80 new members have been enrolled.

Last Wednesday night the Frankfort Camp held their annual installation of officers at the Frankfort Hall. The hall was very prettily decorated in blue and white. The altar was decorated in purple and white, the colors of the order. A lattice effect in purple and white also added charm to the other decorations.

Mrs. Ford was the installing officer and Miss Viola Lankenau was ceremonial marshal. Neighbor Ford, on behalf of the Frankfort R. N. A. Camp presented Mrs. Fred Warning with an R. N. A. Oracle pin as a means of appreciation of her services as Oracle for the past four years. Neighbor Ford also presented Miss Lankenau with a bud vase in behalf of the members of the order.

Mrs. Ford in turn was presented with a very beautiful vase by the members of the camp.

The outside visitors were Neighbors Daley and Ruthenbeck of Joliet Refreshments were served to about 75 members.

The officers installed were as follows: Oracle, Kathrine Warning; Vice Oracle, Emma C. Marti; Past Oracle, Edith Heisner; Recorder, Bertha Neiland; Receiver, Mable Warning; Chaplain, Bertha Stephen; Marshall, Ida M. Baumann; Assistant Marshal, Hattie Baumgartner; Inner Sentinel, Christian Bennett; Outer Sentinel, Freida Marti; Five Graces, Clara Sangmeister, Mary Pfaff, Bernice Gauthier; Lulu Geuther and Emma Scott. Lillian Zechlin, Musician; Matilda Bettenhausen, flag bearer.

The three managers being Ida Lankenau, Charlotte Folkers and Lizzie Eisenbrandt.

B. Andresen Home At Alpine Burned

The home of Bartel Andresen at Alpine was destroyed by fire early Monday morning. About 3:30 A.M. Harold, one of the sons of Mr. Andresen awoke and smelled smoke and upon investigating found the entire upstairs on fire. The blaze apparently had started around the chimney. Neighboring farms were called by telephone, but before help could be secured the large farm house was doomed and quickly burned to the ground. Very little of the household goods and clothes were saved. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The farm buildings escaped the flames and were in no danger.

Big Cow Sale at Manhattan Feb. 17

A big sale of Gurnsey Swiss and Holstein milk cows will be held on the Ed. Wilson farm on the north edge of Manhattan on Tuesday, Feb. 17th. These cows were grown on the widely known McHattan Gurnsey Farms in Randolph Co., Ill. For further particular read their adv in this issue.

Quits Lunch Room

Carl Schneider, former Mokena resident who has been running a lunch room on Jefferson street in Joliet, sold out the business last Saturday to Heinsel & Gillpell.

This stand is producing good business and the new management is keeping up the same excellent service that characterized this business under Mr. Schneider's management.

MAY INSTALL RADIO IN NEW TINLEY PARK SCHOOL

It is understood that a movement is on to have a radio installed in the new public school.

Worth Community Church Active

The Worth Community Church has launched a very active program. This church is organized to meet the needs of the community and its aim is to make the community of Worth a finer and better place in which to live.

This church has a fine choir which sings at the regular and special services.

In addition, this church has been putting on a series of entertainments this winter which have been quite an attraction and have been well patronized. On Feb. 13 the Swanee River Jubilee Singers put on a fine program which was much enjoyed.

Next Sunday morning, Feb. 15 the sermon topic will be, "The Salt of the Earth." Special music will be furnished by Miss Piper of Oak Lawn. In the evening an address will be given by Miss Anna Daniels of the Near East Relief.

The Ladies Aid will hold their monthly meeting on Feb. 19th.

On Feb. 20 a social will be held at the church commencing at 7:30 to which everyone is invited.

On Feb. 22, Washington's birthday the sermon topic will be "Heroes of the World". There will also be special music. In the evening there will be a special song service by the choir.

Feb. 25th, Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent will be observed.

The time of services are as follows:

Sunday School 10 A. M.
Morning Worship 11 A. M.
Sunday Evening Club 5 P. M.
Evening Service 7 P. M.

Worth Standard Oil Station Shows 49.2 Increase

Thru error it was stated last week that the Standard Oil station at Worth showed a gain of 19.2 gain in business in 1924 over 1923 but the gain was decidedly larger and the statement should have read a gain of 49.2 per cent gain over 1923. The local station is proud of this record and justly so.

John McCarthy Farm Not Sold

The John McCarthy farm west of New Lenox, which was offered for sale at public auction on Monday, was not sold as Mr. McCarthy did not feel the bids offered were enough to pay for the real value of the farm. The highest bid offered was $175 per acre.

The sale of Ora Brown Higgins, who has been tenancing this farm was held the same day and was well attended. Good prices were realized, the sale totaling about $3,000.

Auto Ditched; Frankfort Man Hurt

While Lawrence Dittrich of Frankfort was driving in his car Saturday afternoon he upset in the ditch at the four corners north of Frankfort. He was cut about the face by the broken glass from the windshield and was otherwise cut and bruised.

PICKS UP 40 LONG DISTANCE STATIONS IN ONE NGHT

Norman Hardinger tuned in on 40 long distance stations Monday night with a Garod set. He picked up the following stations: KDKA, KOP, WOC, WGN, WLS, WMAQ, WSAI, WKAR, KFKB, WBCN, WJJD, WTAM, WHB, KSAP, WKB, WHA, WHO, WBAP, WOBD, WFR, WTAS, KFNF, WABN, WCBZ, WAE, WHAZ, WLW, NOS, WJZ, WCAP, WEAF, WOAW, JFXY, WCAE, WOO, WCCO, WSE, WCEE, KFI, CK, WDAF, KFRU, KTHS.

This is considered the best record ever set here for the number of long distance radio stations picked up in one single night.

Mrs. Agnes Hirsch Weds Joliet Man

Mrs. Agnes Hirsch, a former Mokena resident, was united in marriage to Oscar O. Overly at the home of the bride, 626 Clinton St., Joliet, last Sunday February the eighth. The services were read at 5 o'clock by the Rev. Mr. Herbert Dack, pastor of the Grace Methodist church in Joliet.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Thomas Collier of Joliet, and Mrs. Ruby C. Zeman and Robert A. Welsh, also of Joliet, acted as bridesmaid and best man respectively.

The bride was beautifully attired in a Steel gray beaded gown and wore a corsage of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was becomingly gowned in a Nile green beaded creation and wore a corsage of pink sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

After the marriage ceremony, a dinner was served to 35 guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Overly will reside at 626 Clinton St., Joliet. The many friends of the couple wish them much happiness and success.

Talking Bullets

"DANGER, nowadays, never seems to lurk in an odd corner and then jump out at a fellow like it used to when you were a boy," little Tommy Radnor was complaining to the captain. As he said these words, Tommy, along with the captain and other nine boys who made up the captain's usual crew of listeners, sat at the sea end of the long, new pier and fished.

No one said anything for a moment. "Boys," then asked the captain, "do you all think you'd like some adventure? Not just a game of some sort, but a few thrilling moments when your lives would be in grave danger?"

Again there was a moment of silence. Then blue-eyed Tommy Radnor broke out impetuously: "Sure, I would. We all would. I would like it fine."

And Tommy puffed up his chest and tried to look brave and manly.

"Perhaps," said quiet Bobby Treat. "Perhaps it wouldn't be so much fun as you think."

Quite an argument started. At last some of the boys began to get angry. The captain saw this, so he interfered. "Tommy, Bobby, all of you," he called sharply, "this is no way to get along on the very day your new club is started. If the club is to be worth while you will all have to learn to stick together. Any arguing should be done with outsiders, and even that isn't in the least necessary."

"Let's get in a circle and shake hands all 'round," suggested Bobby. The ring was formed. They started to shake hands.

Whirr—z-z-zip! something cut through the air above their heads with an angry hiss. Zip-z-zip—t—something struck the pier and knocked up a tiny shower of splinters. Then they heard the sound of rifle shots. On the shore to their right were tiny flashes.

"Quick! Down behind the logs here!" snapped the captain. There was a ringing note of command in his voice and the boys did as he told them with no questions.

The rifle shots kept up. But the boys were safe, now. On looking out toward the seaward side of the pier, they saw a medium-sized steam launch. Bullets were splashing in the water about it. Evidently the men on shore had been shooting toward the launch without really intending to hit anyone on the pier.

"Look! See what they are doing on the launch!" It was quiet Bobby Treat's voice, and it was steady and clear.

The fact of the matter was that the boat was a revenue cutter with a little one-pound quick-firer mounted in the bow. The revenue men had taken the canvas cover off the gun and made ready to open fire.

Bang! Bang! Bang! went the gun. Shells whistled toward the shore. In a moment the rifle firing was silenced. Then the revenue men stopped shooting, also.

The captain climbed back on top of the pier and waved his hat. "Ahoy, there is the cutter!" he shouted. "What's up?"

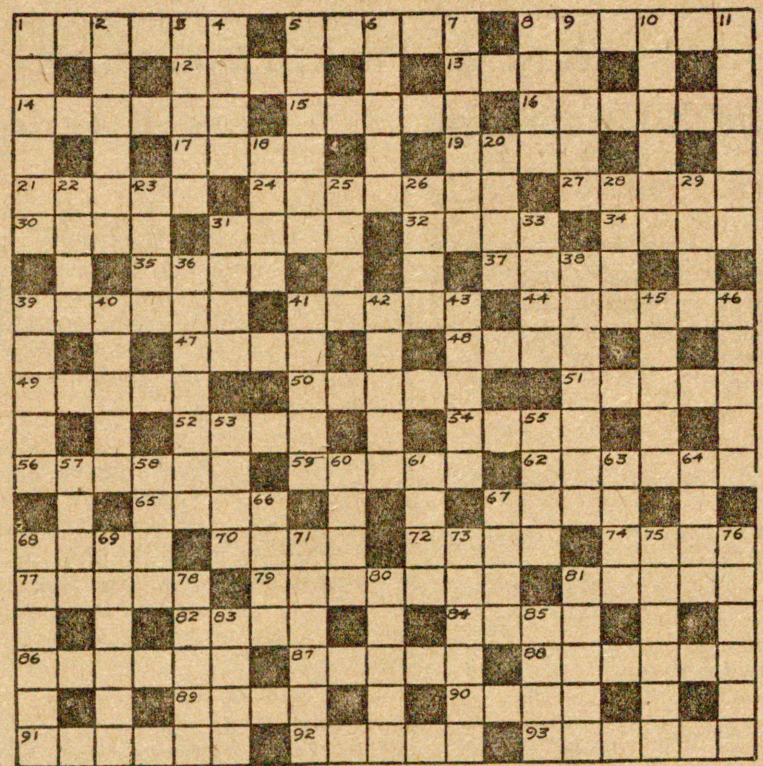

The officer in charge of the revenue men recognized the captain and steered the cutter alongside the pier.

"Just some smugglers," he said. "Desperate characters all of them. It's a good thing we were ready. They have stopped at nothing, and only yesterday fired at one of our unarmed launches. We thought we'd fool them this time and brought the little one-pounder along. Some of my men are posted on the hills back of the swamp over there, where the smugglers operate. No one can get through that way and we'll get any who try to sneak away in boats. Good-by, captain, glad none of your crew of boys was hurt." And the revenue men were on their way toward the swamp where the smugglers were hiding.

"Well, you've had quite a bit of adventure today," said the captain. "How does it set with you?"

The captain looked at Tommy Radnor. But Tommy just hung his head. Then Sammy Treat said: "I'll tell you what I think. I think it would have hurt like everything to have had one of those bullets hit you. That's what I think."

Most of the boys nodded their heads in assent to this. And they all agreed as they started home, that the club had got a real initiation on the day it was founded. Before they separated they all formed a circle and each boy shook hands with every one of the others. The club was a real club now.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

ABDOMINAL PAIN IN CHILDREN

WHEN your baby wakes you up by crying in the middle of the night and tells you, if it is old enough to talk, that it has a pain in its stomach, what is the matter with it?

Pain in the abdomen occurs more frequently in children than in adults. The infant cannot tell you what the pain is like or where it is located. It may not even be old enough to tell you that it has pain at all and you can only judge by its actions. Generally it will do no more than vaguely point at its stomach as the location of the pain. Often it will not even allow a careful examination. Yet many of the conditions which cause abdominal pain in children require prompt and definite treatment.

Colic is perhaps the most common cause of abdominal pain, especially during the first three months of life. Colic usually occurs at the same time every day, generally in the afternoon or evening. The pain is sharp, comes on suddenly without warning, and generally disappears as quickly. The child has no fever and often no other symptom except the pain. Colic is due to overstretching of the stomach or intestines by food, gas or air, or to the production of gas in the intestines, caused by improper food or food which is subject to fermentation. Colic generally appears during or just after feeding and is frequently relieved by unloading the stomach or by the escape of gas.

So-called colic, however, may be due to a number of other conditions. It may be caused by hunger, over-feeding, or too frequent feeding, indigestion from improper foods, constipation, too much clothing, or too heavy covering, too tight clothing, irritation from pins in the belly band, or chafing and irritation of the skin.

These causes are temporary and comparatively harmless. A much more serious condition is obstruction of the bowels from one part of the intestine being telescoped into the other. Such a condition is comparatively common in infants. In such cases blood is often passed in the stools or vomited. The pain, while not severe, is continuous. The muscles of the abdomen are tense and there is usually a sausage-shaped lump which may be felt through the abdominal wall. This condition is exceedingly dangerous. No time should be lost in calling a capable physician.

Pneumonia frequently starts with abdominal pain so that it is always well in cases of sudden and severe pain in infants to have the chest carefully examined. Appendicitis is also quite common among children and is always accompanied by pain low down in the abdomen. Rupture causes a persistent pain in the abdomen which is not relieved by regulating the food.

Abdominal pain in children should not be treated lightly.

SLEEPING SICKNESS
IN JAPAN

THE United States public health service reports a strange epidemic in Japan. Up to date, there have been about 5,000 cases. First reported as meningitis, later as sleeping sickness, it is now considered a hitherto unidentified contagious disease.

The disease is markedly different from both meningitis and infantile paralysis. Males seem to be more frequently affected than females. It does not appear to be carried by contact since more than one case in a household has been rarely observed.

The sickness begins with a rise in temperature, with or without other symptoms such as slight headache, sleepiness, and discomfort. Within twenty-four or forty-eight hours, during which the temperature steadily rises, nausea, vomiting, and sleeplessness may occur. Both the arms and the legs are paralyzed. The eyes apparently are not affected. The principal symptom is unconsciousness, which does not generally occur until the third or fourth day. The patient may be delirious but usually appears to be in a deep sleep, from which, however, he may be aroused enough to answer simple questions or swallow food.

In severe cases the patients die without regaining consciousness. In the lighter cases, the fever gradually goes down, the patients slowly regain consciousness and recover completely in ten or fifteen days.

So far, no germ has been found which could be held responsible for this disease. Animals, as well as men, are susceptible and among them the mortality appears to be very high. No one as yet has been able to account for this epidemic or to suggest any reason for it. It has spread over most of Japan but is especially prevalent in certain provinces. The only clue, so far, as to its occurrence is that it has been pointed out that last summer was exceedingly hot and dry in Japan, consequently very dusty, and that the epidemic came to an end following the coming of the fall rains.

Whether this disease is some modified form of the so-called infantile paralysis, which frequently occurs in our Western states during hot weather, or whether it is a new and entirely unheard-of disease, is still to be determined.

SICK WOMEN SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED

Letters Like This Prove the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, backache and nervousness. I had these troubles for years and had taken other medicines for them, but I have found no medicine so good as the Vegetable Compound and I recommend it to my friends who have troubles similar to mine. I saw it advertised and thought I would try it and it has helped me in all my troubles. I have had six children and I have taken the Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound before each one was born, for weakness, vomiting, poor appetite and backache, and again after childbirth because of dizzy headaches. It is a good medicine for it always helps me. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for the last eight years for constipation." — Mrs. MABEL LAPOINT, R. F. D. ### PITY FOR HIM

SYNOPSIS.—Nurses in the Southern hospital at Avonmouth are angered by the insolent treatment accorded them by Dr. John Lancaster, head of the institution, and there is a general feeling of unrest, into which Joan Wentworth, probationary nurse, is drawn. Doctor Lancaster is performing a difficult operation, for which he has won fame. Joan, with other nurses, is in attendance. She is upset, through no fault of her own, and makes a trivial blunder at a critical moment. The patient dies and Doctor Lancaster accuses her of clumsiness. She is suspended, the action meaning the end of her hope of a career as a nurse. Without relatives or friends, and desperate, Joan, urged by her landlady, goes to Doctor Lancaster's office to ask him to overlook her blunder and reinstate her. She overhears a violent altercation between Doctor Lancaster and other men she does not see.

Chapter III

She found herself in a large, lighted room, with the sense of an institution, though it was well furnished. She saw the white enameled table, the glass case full of instruments, the empty court outside; then John Lancaster himself, alone, standing with bent head behind a chair, on which he was leaning.

As Joan entered an inner door began to open. Joan knew that the man with whom Lancaster had been quarreling was inside a room behind it. She dreaded lest he should come in; but suddenly the door closed.

She looked at Lancaster again. It was still quite light within the consulting room, but Lancaster, standing with his back to the window, was in silhouette, so that Joan could not see his face clearly.

"Well, madam?" he asked, raising his head.

"I came to speak to you about this morning," began Joan hurriedly. "It means—"

He indicated a chair. He was gazing at her with some embarrassment—Joan thought because of the scene in which he had just participated. "Tell me the trouble," he began, as she seated herself, drawing up his own chair toward hers.

Now Joan could see his face, and, to her astonishment, it did not bear the expression of the smirking bully whom she had seen that morning, nor yet of the man who had addressed another man in such terms as one might use to a slave. It was not an unkindly face. And it was unmistakably that of a sick man.

For a moment she remembered the stories told of his behavior in the operating theater, of the gentleness that seemed to transform the man, as if he possessed a dual personality. Then she recalled to herself by Lancaster's repetition of his remark.

Joan rose up hastily. She realized that the doctor had mistaken her for a patient. Her face meant nothing to him, any more than her distress of the day had affected him. With a nervous movement she unfurled her cloak, disclosing her uniform.

"I am Miss Wentworth," she explained. "I came to tell you—I came to say—"

Then, treading out her pride once more, "I came to ask if you won't reconsider your decision to suspend me. My work means everything to me. It is my life work, my vocation. I always wanted to be a nurse. I felt that it was my task to help alleviate suffering. Doctor Lancaster, apart from my own interests, I want to graduate to be able to help others. Won't you give me another opportunity?"

She spoke with her hands unconsciously clasped before her; the recollection of her earlier hopes, the thought of their frustration brought a quiver into her voice. When she stopped she saw that Lancaster was looking at her with obvious interest.

"Tell me about this morning," he said quietly.

"I had to come away without breakfast, and the fumes of the ether made me faint. I was nearly fainting when you asked me for the scalpel, and I couldn't see the tray. Indeed it was not the operation that made me ill. I have never been reprimanded before. The lady superintendent had told me several times that the hospital appreciated my work. So I hoped you would be willing to overlook my blunder and let me graduate."

Lancaster looked at her with a singular expression that seemed to mask his thoughts. She could not tell how her plea had impressed him. When he spoke she was dumfounded by the harshness and casualness of his tone. "Why have you come to my house about this?" he asked. "This is not my hour for seeing patients—I mean people."

"I am sorry if I did wrong!" cried the girl. "But if you knew how much it means to me—"

"I can do nothing for you now," said Lancaster.

The voice was harsh again, but curiously flat, as if he was trying to restrain his emotions, hold himself in; as if he was afraid. . . . but afraid of what? Not of his anger.

Joan was standing in front of him, and even then the appearance of the man had something pathological about it to her mind. There was not the least jauntiness or self-consciousness about him. He looked older than in the morning, depressed, and certainly ill. His manner indicated that of one just aroused from sleep. His eyes were very bright, and his face unnaturally pale. He was pressing his thumb and finger firmly against the arm of the chair, as if for support. Joan remembered the stories of his drinking habits. But she saw at once that Lancaster had not been drinking. She had attended too many alcoholic patients at the hospital not to be sure of that.

"Doctor Lancaster, my dismissal means the loss of all my prospects. I came to ask if you won't inquire about my record and then give me another chance," said Joan. "And I am sorry if I came at an inconvenient time; but now that I am here I must request the courtesy of a final answer. I shall not come to you again."

"I can't answer you," said Lancaster, as if speaking in his sleep. "In the interests of discipline—it is impossible to answer you now."

Joan turned away. The flat refusal stunned her. And there was something preposterous about Lancaster's manner, perfectly incomprehensible to her. What was the matter with him? Why did the room turn round and round? Suddenly she felt Lancaster's hand on her arm. He was supporting her, helping her into a chair; and through the fog she saw a look of concern on his face.

"Now sit quiet, Miss Wentworth," he said in a new tone of decision. "Sit quiet, I tell you. Wait a minute."

But They Meet in a Day or Two, and Then—and, when you are feeling composed, let me see if I can't help you."

He drew his chair toward hers again and leaned toward her.

"I have not been feeling well," he explained. "I was not myself when I discharged you this morning. When I refused to discuss the matter with you it was because it is an invariable rule that the nurses are not supposed to come to my house. Outside the hospital I see nobody connected with the hospital. I'll see what I can do. The matter will have to go before the board now, I suppose. Why did you come away without your breakfast? Why didn't your folks insist on your having something to eat?"

"I have no people," answered Joan. "My mother died nearly two years ago. We came here from Lucas county, and she was taken ill soon after our arrival. I hoped to get my diploma and have my profession."

"You had no breakfast, and I discharged you for fainting, and your diploma means everything to you," said Lancaster slowly, clasping his hands as if in thought. Then, with a decisive, odd gesture, he leaned still nearer Joan and dropped his voice as he spoke, as if he was afraid that the man in the next room would hear him. "Remember this as long as you live," he said. "In this life people are not penalized for incapacity; they are punished for being unfortunate. Are you unlucky, Miss Wentworth?"

"I—why, yes, I suppose I must be," she answered, looking at Lancaster in growing astonishment, mixed with a little fear.

"And you have sympathy for the unfortunate? You—you said something like that just now—about wishing to be of help to others. Are you loyal and staunch?"

"I hope I am," said Joan uneasily. "If one is loyal to others, one does not fear one's own misfortunes," said Lancaster. "They rise out of some fault or weakness—if one follows the trail far enough back into one's self. I've learned that, heaven knows! Miss Wentworth," he ended suddenly, "would you consider a temporary position while your case is under investigation by the board?"

"But they meet in a day or two, and then—"

"Would you consider it," repeated Lancaster, "if you could be of greater service than you know? Suppose I said to you as I am saying now, that you seem to me the best suited, by loyalty and good will, to help, of all the nurses I know, would you accept?"

"Then, Doctor Lancaster," cried Joan triumphantly, "if you have that opinion of me you have no excuse for not getting the board to reinstate me."

The man faltered as she looked at him. He was no longer terrible to her. He seemed to have put off some hateful armor that he assumed, and revealed weakness that none had suspected. Pity for him, a vast and heartfelt pity whose cause she was unable to divine, began to stir the girl's heart.

"I pledge you my word to do all I can for you," said Lancaster. "But you must help me in turn. I need you for this purpose. I want you to go into the country for a month. It will rest you, too, and you are run down. Have you ever heard of the Lancaster Institute in Drexham county?"

"I think so," answered Joan, rather doubtfully.

"It is a hobby of mine. My father established it twenty-five years ago for the hill people, but the funds became squandered, and it is not in good shape. However, it does some good, and it is the only place of its kind within a score of miles. Doctor Jenkins is in charge, and I—I run down there every now and then to keep him up to the mark. There is a matron there. The cases comprise a little light surgical work occasionally, an alcoholic or two after pay-days for the mining element, pneumonia in its season, and—yes, there's a demented woman there, but she won't come under your care. It's in the hill country. How would you like to go?"

"I don't know what to say," answered the girl.

"But you have no attachments in Avonmouth?" he asked, looking hard at her.

"Nobody. But, Doctor Lancaster, all my thoughts are bent on my reinstatement."

"I'll do my best for you if you will help me out with this case," he answered. "And you will get strong in a month and take up your work again with a light heart. You will have a small remuneration, and your fare, of course. You'll go?"

"I'll go, then," answered Joan.

"Then listen to me," he said, again speaking with lowered voice and glancing back in apprehension toward the inner door. "I shall not see you before you start, but I rely on you. You must leave on the nine o'clock train tomorrow morning. And you must speak to nobody about this undertaking."

"I shall say nothing, Doctor Lancaster. And I have to thank you with all my heart."

He frowned at her. And the curious indecision in his manner, the furtiveness of the man, which still disquieted the girl, was in extraordinary contrast to Lancaster's appearance in the theater that morning, to everything that she had associated with him. She was utterly bewildered.

As she rose Lancaster came very close to her, and now his voice was little more than a whisper.

"I'll wire to Mrs. Fraser, the matron," he said, "and I'll have the buggy meet you at the station—Lancaster station, Miss Wentworth. And I wish—"

But the door opened, and the white attendant slouched into the room. He stared insolently at Joan. "Doctor Lancaster—" he began.

"I'll see you when I am alone, Myers," answered Lancaster.

"Doctor Lancaster, will you please give me a few moments of your time," said the man urgently; and underneath the plea Joan seemed to see the insolence and contempt in his heart. Suddenly the idea came to her that this must be the man whom Lancaster had berated in the consulting room.

She went out, and as soon as she was in the passage she heard the attendant begin to address Lancaster in excited tones. Then the inner door opened. She fancied there were three men, after all. Somebody was speaking in high tones; and then Lancaster's deep, booming voice rang out.

Apparently, Dr. Lancaster has a dual personality. Is his offer genuine? Or is it a trap for the handsome nurse?

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Happenings of the World Tersely Told

Washington—

"There is no change in the favorable business outlook for 1925," Secretary of the Treasury Mellon said at Washington, asserting that he is well satisfied with the country's economic outlook as the mid-winter season draws to a close.

Commissioner R. A. Cooper declared before the presidents of the federal joint stock land banks in their conference at Washington with the federal farm loan board that the guiding policy of the farm-loan system must include a program of aid for an improvement of agricultural conditions.

Decrease in the use of coffee, due to high prices, was seen by officials of the Commerce department at Washington as a reason for Brazilian reports of an American boycott against the commodity.

The nomination of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone as an associate justice of the United States Supreme court was confirmed by the senate at Washington by a vote of 71 to 6.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee at Washington proposed a bill to restore the billion-dollar trust fund now administered by the alien property custodian to its former enemy owners.

Imposition of stiff penalties has given dry law violators a stiff setback in the last year, says a Washington dispatch. Fines assessed in the enforcement of the act in five years total $24,000,000.

Gasoline prices in Washington have advanced five cents. On the motion of Representative Steahman of Maryland the house has ordered an investigation of the increases in Washington.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, vice president-elect, is still of the opinion that a vice-president should not sit with the President's cabinet, he said at Chicago.

Domestic—

Jack Dempsey and his bride, Estelle Taylor, started on their honeymoon. Mrs. Dempsey said: "I don't want Jack to fight any more, but, if he wants to fight, he will, so why fuss about it?" The ceremony took place at the First Presbyterian church at San Diego, Cal.

Balto, leader of Gunnar Kassin's team and hero of a recent race from Nenana to Nome with 300,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin, is dead, according to a report reaching Fairbanks. The report added that most of the other dogs in Kassin's team had died from frozen lungs.

Assemblyman Heinrich of Lyon county, father of five children, debating against the child-labor amendment before the Nevada legislature, said: "They have taken our women away from us by constitutional amendments; they have taken our liquor away from us, and now they want to take our children."

Enforcement of the little-used vagabond statute was seen by Chief Justice Harry Olson as a remedy for crime in Chicago.

Fire in the building owned by the Boston Transcript caused $125,000 loss. The presses were quickly repaired.

Legislative and executive authority of Indiana was invoked to prevent the spread of the deadly European poultry plague, found in nine counties of the eastern part of the state. An emergency appropriation of $50,000 was voted by both houses at Indianapolis, the money to be used in combating and preventing the spread of the disease.

"Diana of the Dunes" is dead. Just nine years ago, when she was Alice Gray, she took up her residence amid the sand wastes between Gary and Michigan City. She died in the arms of Paul Wilson, whom she married three years ago. The cause of her death was uremic poisoning.

Professional basket ball on Sunday was declared illegal for Kentucky, a decision to that effect having been given at Frankfort by the Court of Appeals, the state's highest tribunal. This creates no bar to amateur games.

Justice Frederick W. Sims, ranking member of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, committed suicide in his hotel apartment at Richmond by shooting himself with a shotgun. Despondency because of poor health was given as the motive.

Kenneth Bunker, an army private, stationed at Fort Leavenworth, died at a hospital, bringing the list of fatalities as the result of a collision between a Missouri-Pacific passenger train and a freight train near Neuman, Kans., to six.

Possible action by the Department of Justice at Washington to prevent monopolistic control of prices of a number of household utilities was forecast by Attorney General Stone.

Moe Turman, twenty-six-year-old Ponzi, was sentenced to a term of ten years' imprisonment when he pleaded guilty at New York to a forgery indictment. He is alleged to have pyramided a $100 loan into obligations totaling $2,000,000.

May wheat threw the pit of the Chicago Board of Trade into pandemonium with another break in price. It dropped to $1.85 a bushel, which was a fall of about 21 cents from the high mark. With it went the paper profits of many a clerk and stenographer who merrily flipped aboard the market when prices were racing towards the $2 mark, but who did not leap off in time.

Chicago teamsters and chauffeurs, approximately 6,800 of them, were given a pay boost of $2 a week. The wage is now $44.

Mrs. Katherine Bowker, a sister of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and of Amy Lowell, the poet, fell from the window of her apartment on the fourth floor of the Hotel Vendome at Boston and was instantly killed.

By a vote of 29 to 24, the Montana state senate at Helena refused to ratify the child-labor amendment to the Federal Constitution. The resolution passed the house with only 11 adverse votes.

Personal—

The engagement of James Stillman Rockefeller, son of the late William G. Rockefeller, to Miss Nancy Carnegie, daughter of Andrew Carnegie, II, was announced at New York.

John Burton Foley, president of Foley & Co. of Chicago, printers and engravers, and once large manufacturers of proprietary medicines, fell dead while attending a theater performance.

Prof. William G. Miller, provincial geologist of Ontario, died of meningitis at his home at Toronto. Doctor Miller was perhaps known best for his discovery of silver at Cobalt. He was fifty-eight years old.

Thomas W. Lawson, noted financier, died in a hospital at Boston after a sudden relapse following a recent operation. It is said that in 20 years he made and lost $40,000,000. Mr. Lawson spent $2,000,000 on Dreamworld, his magnificent estate at Egypt, Mass. In 1922 Dreamworld was sold to meet liabilities of about $225,000.

Julius Fleischmann, former mayor of Cincinnati for two terms, millionaire philanthropist and sportsman, president of the Fleischmann Yeast company, died suddenly of heart trouble at Miami Beach, Fla., while playing polo.

A. D. Shepard of San Francisco, former traffic manager of the Southern Pacific railroad, died at Algiers from a sudden heart attack, according to advices received at Nice, France.

Edward F. Gorton, seventy, retired capitalist of Chicago, was married to his nurse, Miss C. A. Johnson, thirty-nine, of Batavia. Mr. Gorton formerly was mayor of Lake Forest. He is a retired board of trade operator and is reputed to be a millionaire.

Foreign—

To obtain first-hand information necessary for an intelligent discussion of the Franco-American debt, M. Clementel, French finance minister, is planning an unofficial visit to the United States shortly after March 4.

Following the lead of the United States delegation, China has withdrawn from participation in the League of Nations opium conference to curtail the production of opium, says a Geneva dispatch.

Withdrawal from the international opium conference at Geneva on the ground that the purpose of the meeting cannot be attained was announced by the American delegation.

A dispatch from Constantinople to London says the Turkish headquarters is investigating to ascertain the truth of reports that Greek troops are concentrating in the demilitarized zone of Thrace.

Seven Soviet officials were sentenced to death for mismanagement and corruption in the state leather monopoly, according to a dispatch from Leningrad. Three were given five to eight years.

Great Britain will ask no more from Europe than she is pledged to pay the United States. This was the principle laid down in the note to France on the debt question, says a London dispatch.

Eleven Japanese sailors, including one officer and two petty officers, were drowned in the harbor at Vancouver, B. C., when the pinnacle in which they were returning to the cruiser Idzuma collided with the Canadian Pacific tug Nanosco. The Idzuma is one of three vessels of the Japanese navy training squadron which is on the last leg of a 20,000-mile cruise.

Influenza took the lives of 202 persons in England in one week. Twenty thousand persons are ill of the disease in London alone.

"One Jesus"

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D.,
Dean of the Correspondence School,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—One Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.—Acts 25:19.

These words spoken by a pagan were unwittingly a full rounded gospel, one Jesus, dead and coming to life again.

J. H. Ralston, D.D.

1. Let us pause a moment with the expression "one Jesus." Festus was simply calling attention to a certain young man, who some years before had finished a most remarkable ministry, of possibly not more than a year. A man whose name is magical throughout the known world today, a name that puts into shadow such names as Confucius, Buddha and Mohammed, not to speak of Caesar, Napoleon, Washington, Lincoln, names that are known the world around. To Festus the name itself was not impressive, there were plenty of Jews about him by the same name, but this was a particular Jew by the name of Jesus. The use of the name is tremendously suggestive as we consider what Christianity is, for it has no significance aside from Christianity. Many Christians seem to think that Christianity is little more than a creed, a system of doctrine to be believed, or a compact organization for ecclesiastical purposes. Others think it simply a code of morals by which we are to pattern our lives, or a system of ceremonies to be observed. But this expression, "one Jesus," suggests with tremendous force that Christianity is loyalty to a person. Jesus left out, the life is gone. It is well to keep in mind that the term "Jesus," as properly understood, is very comprehensive; the story of redemption centering at the cross has many aspects.

2. The first thing that Festus said of this Jesus is expressed in three words, "which was dead," or "who died." Festus said nothing about the life and work of Jesus, of the years of His activity among men. He simply said that he had died. Is there not suggestion there that Festus unwittingly recognized one of the two great pillars of Christianity? The name of Jesus charms those who see a pictorial Jesus, the Jesus of the artist, the Jesus of the writer—a young man teaching, preaching, healing and comforting; that is all. But great violence is done to the work of Jesus in practically omitting the climax of His ministry, since in that climax we find His redemptive work. In his letter to the Romans Paul said that Jesus was delivered for our offenses and rose again for our justification. Paul would preach nothing to the Corinthians but Jesus Christ and Him crucified. It was the death that made forgiveness of sins possible, for without the shedding of blood there is no remission.

3. This one Jesus was said to be alive. There is no explanation of the term "life" here. Whether Jesus had another incarnation or whether He had been raised from the dead as He had prophesied. He was in any case alive. In the light of what Paul afterward taught, we know this Jesus is now sitting at the right hand of the Father in glory. Here is the great doctrine of the resurrection of Jesus Christ, which completes the gospel message—Jesus died, Jesus was raised from the dead. Unwittingly Festus again preached the gospel, but so far as we know it never profited Him, for He was one of the many who, like Felix, wanted "a more convenient season," and this season never came. Yes, the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead is an essential doctrine of the Christian faith. If Jesus did not rise, preaching and faith are vain, and men must remain in their sins.

It is most interesting to note the expression, "whom Paul affirmed to be alive." When Paul was converted at Damascus he was told he was to be a witness for Christ. Now, this is all that men can do. Ministers of the word can take up the Old and New Testament Scriptures and show Christ to the world, but after all it is simply affirming. What, indeed, can man do more? When he tells the story his responsibility ceases; but until he has told the story, all of it, his responsibility is not discharged, and he has involved himself in great guilt. What a tragedy that so many who claim to preach the gospel do not tell the story! It is to be observed that the most successful preachers have simply told the story in its simplest form.

Tell me the old, old story,
Of unseen things above,
Of Jesus and His glory,
Of Jesus and His love.

Root Evil With Good

You cannot drive hate out of your heart and leave a vacuum. You cannot erase doubt and suspicion from your mind and leave a blank. The way to get rid of these things is to substitute something better. Put love in the place of hate. Substitute courage for fear. Erase despondency and write glad optimism in its stead.

Lesson for February 15

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-42.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Not what I will, but what thou wilt"—Mark 14:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus in the Garden.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Christ's Prayer in the Garden.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christ's Prayer in the Garden.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From Gethsemane.

1. Jesus Christ Suffering (vv. 32-34).

1. The Place (v. 32). The garden of Gethsemane—an enclosure containing olive and fig trees, beyond Kidron, about three-fourths of a mile from Jerusalem. The name means olive press. The name is significant of the occasion. Edersheim says, "It is an emblem of trial, distress, and agony." Perhaps the garden was owned by some one of Jesus' friends. It afforded Him a suitable place to retire with His disciples in this trying hour.

2. His Companions (v. 35). He took with Him the eleven disciples that they might share so far as possible, this sorrow with Him. Being a real human being He craved human sympathy. He bade them watch with Him. While He knew that He must "tread the winepress alone," He had a keen appreciation of sympathy so far as those who loved Him could give it.

3. His Great Sorrow (v. 34). This is the same as the "cup" in verse 36. It was not primarily the prospect of physical suffering that was crushing Him; it was the suffering as a sin bearer—the sensations of His pure soul coming into contact with the awful sin and guilt of the world. In addition to this there was the judgment stroke from the holy God as it fell upon His Son instead of the sinner. God caused the iniquities of the world to strike upon Jesus (II Cor. 5:21; Isa. 53:6).

4. Jesus Christ Praying (vv. 35-42). Though He prized human sympathy in the hour of supreme need, His only recourse was prayer. The sympathy of our friends is helpful, but in the great crises of life we can only find help as we go to God in prayer.

1. The First Prayer (vv. 35-38).

(1) His posture (v. 35). He fell on his face prostrate on the ground. In the hour of our great need we naturally prostrate ourselves before God—a becoming posture. (2) His petition (v. 36). "Take away this cup from Me." By the cup is meant His death on the cross. No doubt it was most grievous to Him to face its shame, but He pressed on knowing that for this cause He had come into the world (John 12:27, 28, cf. Heb. 2:14). He prayed that the "hour might pass from Him"—the burden was so great that it seemed His life would be crushed out. His prayer was heard (Heb. 5:7). When God hears our prayers He grants the petition desired (I John 5:14, 15). Angels ministered to Him, giving the necessary grace to endure to the end (Luke 22:43). (3) His resignation (v. 36). His will was in subjection to the Father. He knew that His death on the cross was the will of God the Father; for He was the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. (4) The disciples rebuked (v. 37). He singled out Peter, since he had been the most conspicuous in proclaiming His loyalty (John 13:38). Though he would go with Him to death he could not watch one hour. (5) Exhortation to the disciples (v. 38). "Watch and pray, lest ye enter into temptation." The only way to be able to stand in the time of trial is to be watching and praying. Jesus knew that although the disciples meant it well they would fail in the trial unless aided from above.

2. The Second Prayer (vv. 39, 40). He withdrew the second time from His disciples and uttered the same words in prayer. This was not vain repetition. It is proper to repeat our requests. He found the disciples asleep again. Their shame and confusion were more marked than at first.

3. The Third Prayer (vv. 41, 42). He uttered the same words in His third prayer (Matt. 26:44). He tells the disciples to sleep on and take their rest, as the hour had now come for His betrayal. There is such a thing as being asleep when wanted and awaking when it is too late.

Thank God

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance, self-control, diligence, strength of will, content and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—Charles Kingsley.

Doubts

Doubts about fundamentals exist in certain churches. Where there is a warm-hearted church, you do not hear of them.—C. H. Spurgeon.

War and Peace

Be at war with your vices, at peace with your neighbors, and let every year find you a better man or woman.

Power for Holy Service

The power for holy service is inner course with God.

LINCOLN FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Lawyer Convicted of Slaying Wife—Given Life in Prison.

Geneva, Ill.—Warren J. Lincoln of Aurora was sentenced to life imprisonment by a jury which found him guilty of murdering his wife, Lina. An indictment for the murder of her brother, Byron Shoup, still is pending against Lincoln.

When the verdict was announced Lincoln's son, John, threw his arms around his father's neck and they both wept tears of joy.

The trial of the eccentric lawyer and horticulturist, who burned bodies of his victims in his greenhouse furnace and later imbedded their heads in a block of concrete, ended without a direct demand for the death penalty by the state.

In his closing argument to the jury State's Attorney Charles L. Abbott recalled the amazing circumstances of the murders and their detection. The crime was committed on January 10, 1923. Lincoln disposed of the bodies in the next few days and continued his seemingly uneventful life among his flowers until April 29, 1923. Meanwhile no one had missed either Mrs. Lincoln or Shoup, and he might have kept his secret for years.

Lincoln, however, preferred to disappear spectacularly. He made a trail of blood from his greenhouse to the well, making it appear that he had been murdered by his wife and her brother, and his body had been tossed into the well. He vanished.

On June 12 he was found in Chicago. He was questioned at length but revealed nothing. He said he had been kidnapped. He remained in Aurora for a month and then disappeared again.

He was discovered again in Chicago months later and on January 12, 1924, he confessed and led police to the spot where the heads had been entombed in stone. The great block of concrete was cracked open, the heads were found and identified and the murder was solved.

U. S. to Control Drainage of Sewage Into Lakes, Rivers

Washington.—Chicago's sanitation problem is rapidly approaching a settlement.

Secretary of War Weeks announced that he is considering a recommendation by the chief of engineers under the terms of which Chicago would be permitted to divert 8,500 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan for the next five years on the condition that the sanitary district begin the construction of a sewage-treatment system, that compensating works to control lake levels be constructed, and that the metering of the city water be established.

The attitude the War department contemplates assuming in regard to Chicago's sanitation problem is of far-reaching significance. It is to signalize the inauguration of a policy of strict control of the drainage of sewage into navigable inland waters, which fall within the jurisdiction of the federal government.

"The time will come," said General Taylor, chief of army engineers, "when every city in the United States will have to treat all of its sewage and no municipality will be allowed to contaminate the waters of rivers or inland lakes.

The dumping of sewage in lakes and rivers, the army engineers say, is slowly killing off fish.

Retail Food Prices Continue to Advance

Washington.—Continued increase in retail food prices during the month ending January 15 was shown in 20 out of 22 cities for which figures were announced by the bureau of labor statistics of the Department of Labor. The maximum increase of 4 per cent was reported at Cincinnati, Kansas City and Savannah. A 3 per cent increase was shown at Butte, Mont., Little Rock, Ark., Louisville, Ky., Omaha and Peoria, Ill., and 2 per cent at Atlanta, Baltimore, Buffalo, Detroit, Indianapolis, Norfolk, Portland, Maine, and Springfield, Ill.

Orders Probe of General Electric, American Tobacco

Washington.—By a vote of 55 to 25, the senate adopted the Norris resolution for an investigation of the General Electric company, accused of constituting the so-called power trust. The resolution was approved as an amendment to the Ernst resolution, which provides for an investigation of the American Tobacco company and the Imperial Tobacco company of Great Britain and their alleged efforts to hamper tobacco co-operatives.

Gets Appropriation Bill

Washington.—The independent offices' appropriation bill, carrying $452,384,324, which embodied an addition of $34,717 to the house total was reported to the senate. The bulk of the total, $450,000,000, goes to the veterans' bureau.

Hail Storm in Illinois

Galesburg, Ill.—Despite hail stones as large as hazel nuts driven by a strong wind in part of Knox county but little damage was reported.

"Hello Daddy—don't forget my Wrigley's"

Slip a package in your pocket when you go home to night.

Give the youngsters this wholesome, long-lasting sweet—for pleasure and benefit.

Green's August Flower

The remedy with a record of fifty-eight years of surpassing excellence. All who suffer with nervous dyspepsia, sour stomach, constipation, indigestion, torpid liver, dizziness, headaches, coming-up of food, wind on stomach, palpitation and other indications of digestive disorder, will find GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER an effective and efficient remedy. For fifty-eight years this medicine has been successfully used in millions of households all over the civilized world. Because of its merit and popularity GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER is found today wherever medicines are sold. 30 and 90 cent bottles.—Adv.

Some trains of thought are "limited."

Stop the Pain.

The hurt of a burn or a cut stops when Cole's Carbolicaine is applied. It heals quickly without scars. 30c and 60c by all druggists, or send 30c to The J. W. Cole Co., Rockford, Ill.—Advertisement.

Youngsters think that the world doesn't understand. It understands, but it won't admit it.

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support. Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

An early start means early relief.

TINLEY PARK

BACHELOR GROVE LUTH.
CHURCH

Wm. Greve, Pastor.

German services held every Sunday and church holiday at 10 a. m. Holy Communion celebrated next Sunday. Preparatory services will begin at 9:30 a. m. Subject of sermon "St. Paul's Glory in His Infirmities." (2. Cor. 11-19 ff.)

English services conducted every fourth Sunday of the month. Next services will be held Feb. 22nd at 7:30 p. m. Subject "Preparations for Lent." "Is the Christian Life Worth Living?" (Rom. 14, 7-9) You are always welcome.

TINLEY PARK M. E. CHURCH

L. P. Flynn, Pastor

Our morning service is being well attended, and the Sunday School is increasing in attendance. We intend to organize a Young People's Society this coming Sunday at 3 p. m. All the young folks of Tinley Park and vicinity are urged to be present. The age limit is 100.

The evening service instituted two weeks ago has proved to be a success. New song books are an added feature of this service. Those who were unable to be out last Sunday morning missed a wonderful exposition of the 23rd Psalm by Rev. Richard Clearwater. Also on Sunday eve we had the pleasure of listening to some wonderful singing by Miss Elvira Hoegstedt from Minneapolis and Mrs. Flynn. They rendered two numbers. Every Sunday evening will be devoted to a song and praise service. If you enjoy an old fashioned Gospel meeting, come to our church.

Sermon next Sunday will be on the subject "The Truth about Hell." An adult Bible Class will also be organized for next Sunday morning. Our slogan is "Standing Room Only" by Easter.

Mrs. Ladwig, wife of a former pastor of the German M. E. church has been visiting with Tinley Park friends the past week. She is now staying at the Bethany home in Chicago.

Last Friday night the Boy Scouts entertained their parents at a dinner in the parlors of the local M. E. church.

The 500 Club was entertained at the Harry Mager home last Thursday night.

The Bunco Club was entertained Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Babra Hollstein.

The Ladies Aid of the local M. E. church recently donated $25 to ward the benefit of the new public school.

Mrs. Fred Hopman and two children are enjoying balmy California weather, arriving in the Golden State last Sunday. Mr. Hopman is expecting to join them later.

The Luther League held their business meeting Thursday night.

A big masquerade and Valentine dance is to be held at the Saenger Hall this coming Saturday night.

Mr. Adam Keuch who is employed at the Beatty Lumber Yard had quite an experience other day. He was found lying in a pile of coal and said he was sick and that he had felt the spell coming on for several days. He went home later and Dr. Ickstadt was called. He recovered quickly and was back on the job the next day.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schreiber entertained a large number of guests Sunday, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Schreiber. After a pleasant social time, a sumptuous spread was served.

Mrs. Louis Goesel entertained a company of relatives and friends last Monday, the occasion being her birthday anniversary. There were twenty guests present. Bunco was played and the first prize won by Mrs. Murphy. The second by Mrs. Huebenthal, third, Mrs. F. Brockman and the consolation by Mrs. McKee, all of Chicago. She received a number of useful as well as ornamental gifts. After a delightful lunch, which the guests all enjoyed the time was again devoted to bunco.

A rich joke which recently took place has just "leaked". One night a crowd of young fellows played a social game of cards at the home of Ferd Parenti. At the same time a card game was also in progress at the home of Bert Fulton. About mid-night the players at the Parenti place called up Mr. Fulton and asked for Hans Vick, manager of the local lumber yard of the Beatty Lumber Company. When he came to the phone he was told by a highly excited voice to hurry to Tinley as two strangers had broken into the lumber yard office. Bang! up went the receiver. In a few minutes the phone in the Parenti home rang and Mr. Vick asked if Bill

Schaller was there and when told he was Mr. Vick ask him to go over to the lumber yard to see what was doing. After a pause of about 10 minutes Mr. Vick was again called and advised that two bad looking fellows had just left the lumber yard in a big car which was heading past the Fulton place and to be on the lookout. Mr. Fulton quickly seized his trusty rifle and with Mr. Vick hid in some bushes alongside the road waiting for the big car which failed to show up. After a wait of about half an hour, the card players at Mr. Parenti's called the Fulton and asked for Mr. Fulton and Mr. Vick and when told they were still outside, the practical jokers burst out laughing saying "This is KYW broadcasting, the joke is on you!"
